Jason Glover Featured on Podcast Sharing Perspective on the Private Funds Market

12.19.22

Jason Glover, Managing Partner of the Firm's London office, was featured in an episode of the Mourtant podcast, as part of a series looking at the private capital market from the perspective of leaders within the industry. In the episode, Jason discusses his career progression and impact on the industry through his roles at law firms as well as in-house at funds themselves, the evolution of the private funds industry in Europe and what he sees for the future of the market, including areas where increased efficiencies, particularly through technology, might prove valuable. He additionally highlights the success of Simpson Thacher's Private Funds practice across the globe and what skills he thinks make the most effective private funds lawyers.
