

Bryce Friedman and Daniel Feder Author NYLJ Article on Retroactive Insurance Coverage for COVID-19 Losses

05.17.21

Litigation Partner Bryce Friedman and Associate Daniel Feder authored an article published by the New York Law Journal titled, “Retroactive Insurance Coverage for COVID-19 Losses.” Early on in the pandemic, the New York Legislature considered a bill which would have retroactively rewritten commercial insurance policies to provide coverage to businesses interrupted by the spread of COVID-19 and government attempts to curtail it. The article examines the constitutional concerns surrounding such legislation, and how New York courts have communicated that commercial property insurance policies do not provide insurance coverage for these businesses’ losses.

To read the article, please click here (subscription required).

Authors and Contacts

Bryce Friedman

Partner

bfriedman@stblaw.com

+1-212-455-2235

